TRUSTED

GAI's commitment to our clients is built on core principles of service and trust. We pledge to make them the foundation of every project we do, with every client we serve...everyday.

Our Client's Story

Our clients have lots of ideas, some big, some small, some in between. They want to build roads and bridges, they need transmission lines, power plants, convention centers, trails and parks, and industrial facilities. Sometimes their ideas are in major metro areas, downtown areas, or somewhere really remote.

Some of their ideas are high profile, maybe some are just routine. But no matter what the project is, our clients want the best. They need the brightest professionals that understand, that really get it. That's what GAI does.

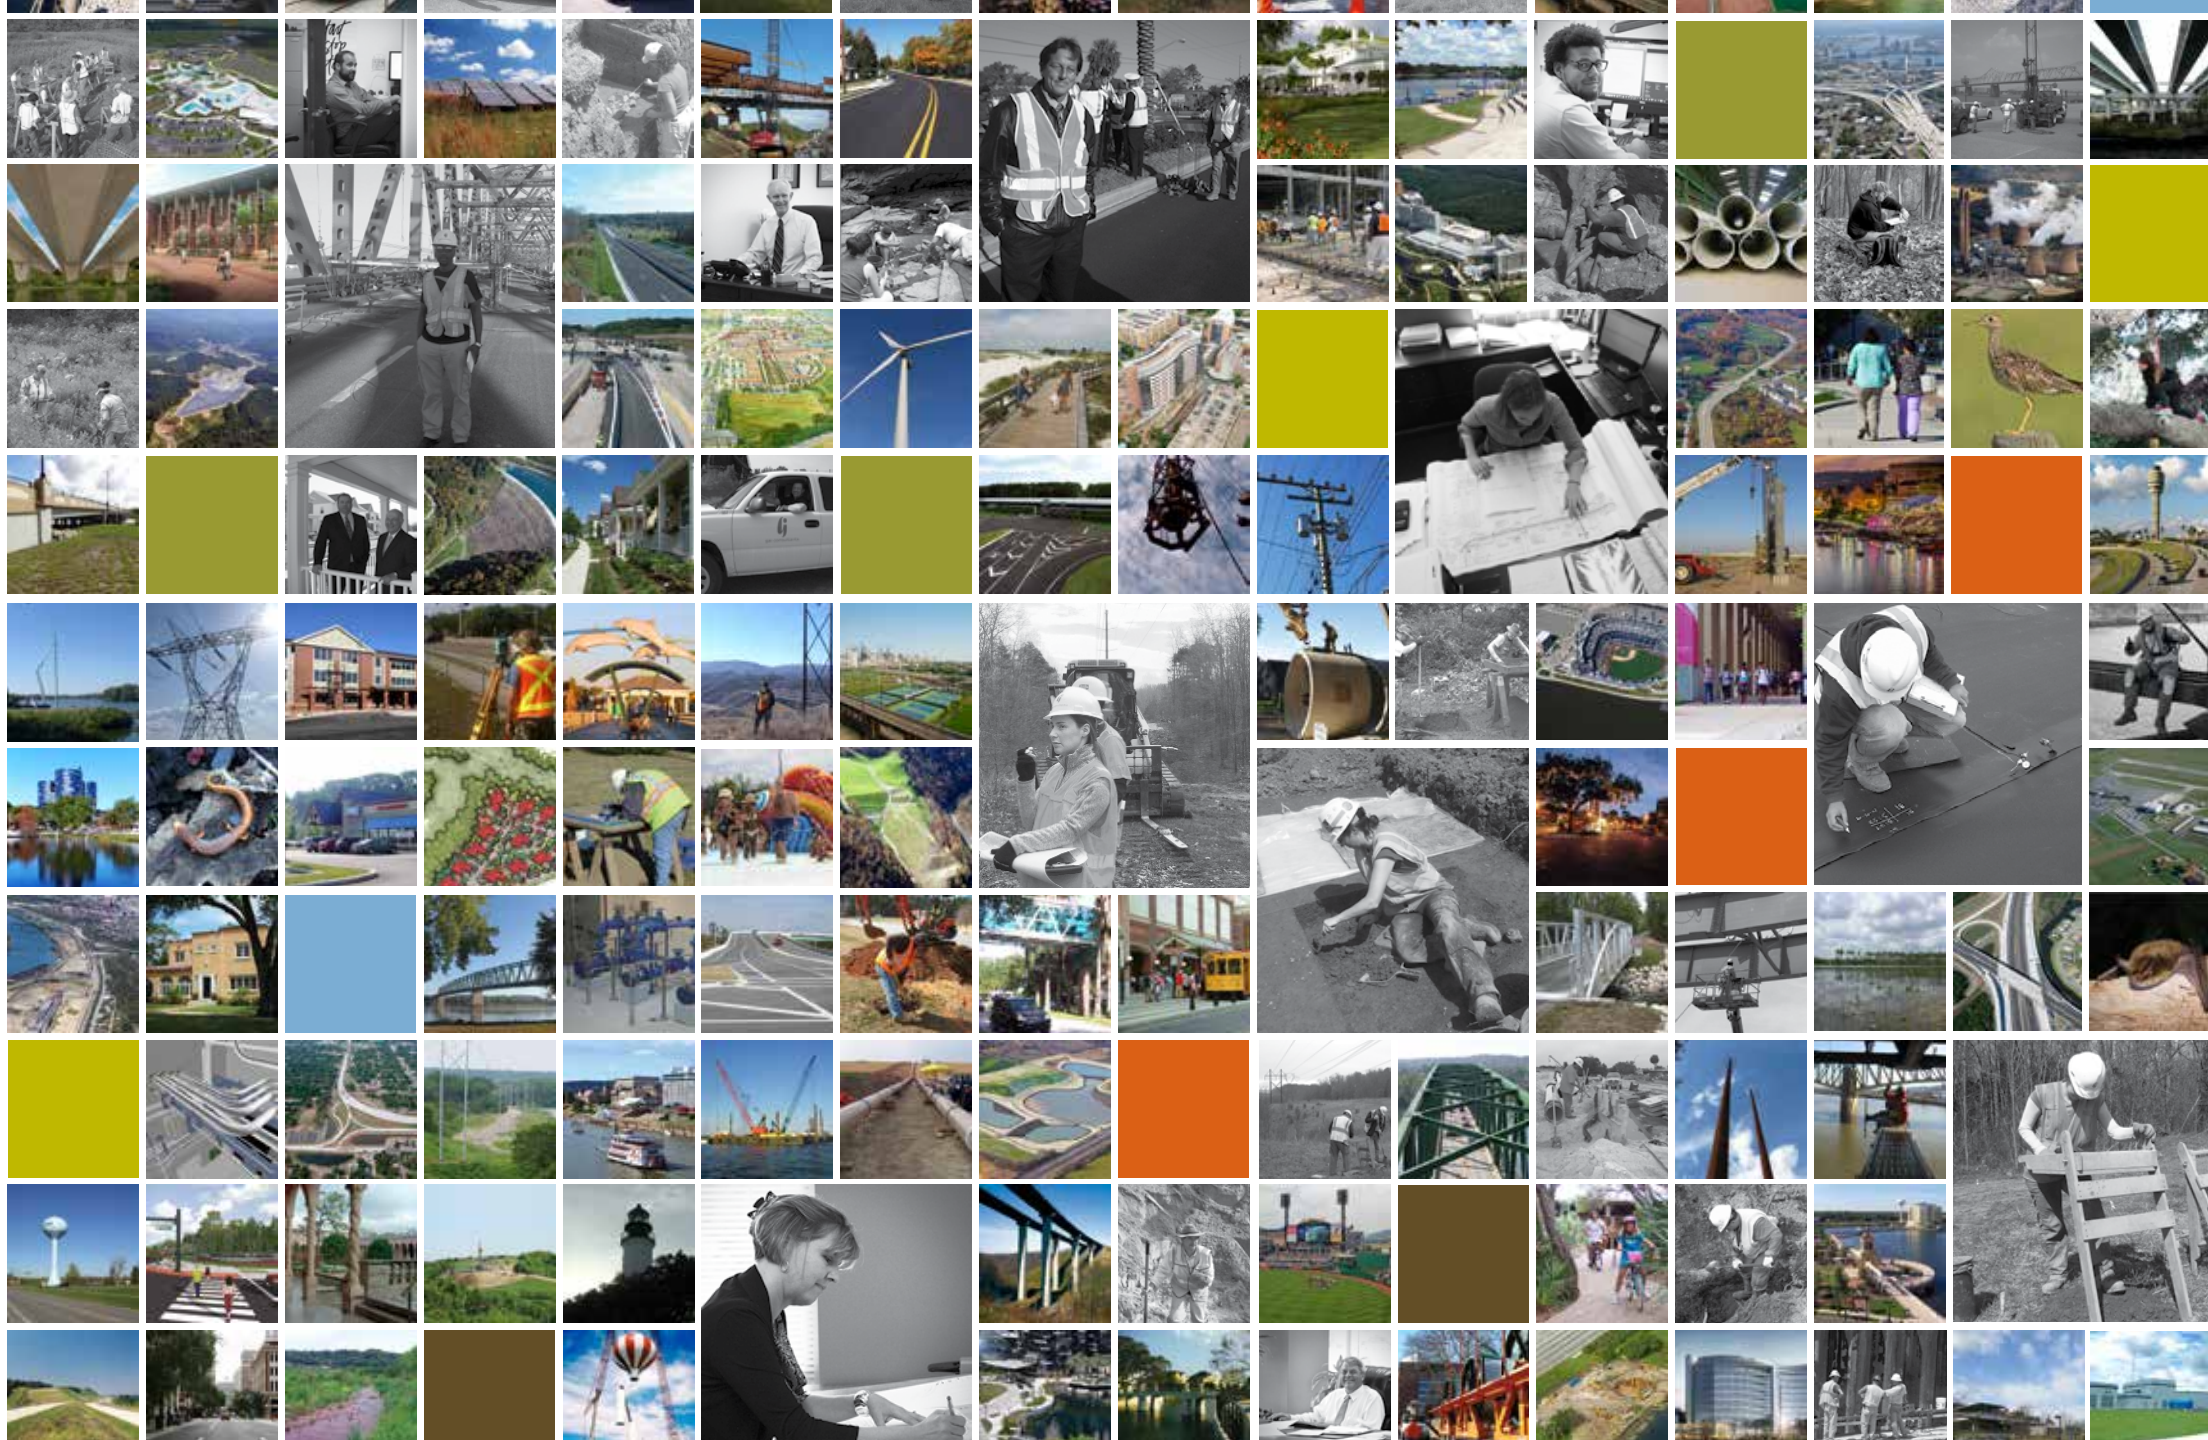

Our clients run the gamut of global companies, local communities, and federal and state agencies. And their reality is huge. It's water, energy, transportation, the environment, our communities, our government.

Whoever those clients are, they want their reality to happen, on time, on budget, maybe even under budget. And they know we're going to come in with high ethical standards and stringent safety measures.

Our clients trust us to take their ideas and make them tangible. And they trust that we will meet and deliver on our promises. They know that we will operate with consistency and a clear understanding of their problems. They want to get the job done.

That's what we do. We're GAI.
